Acknowledgment

First and foremost, we would like to express our sincere gratitude to our project guide, Chirag Mewada. We were privileged to experience a sustained enthusiastic and involved interest from his side. This fueled our enthusiasm even further and encouraged us to boldly step into what was a totally dark and unexplored expanse before us.

Thank you all for sharing your valuable words & this beautiful moment with all of us. We would like to extend my thanks to the Director of the Naran Lala College for his support & effort to make this function a great success. We thank all the teachers who stood by us for every detailing & guidance they provided us with.

It's because we want you all to take advantage of every benefit we do not have. we wish you all nothing but the best and may God bless you all in every path you decide to take. But please work hard because it pays off. Just think about all the amazing opportunities you have that we do not have but we still continue on every single day as hard as it can get, we work harder. There's nothing I'd want more than to have what you have. Allow yourself to make your dreams come true, for yourself and for those that are rooting you along the way.

Thank you . I feel so grateful and blessed to have parents like you in my life. In addition, thank you so much for your support—both emotional and financial—over the years.

Tools Used

1. Bootstrap

Bootstrap is a free and open-source tool collection for creating responsive websites and web applications. It is the most popular HTML, CSS, and JavaScript framework for developing responsive, mobile-first web sites. It solves many problems which we had once, one of which is the cross-browser compatibility issue.

Nowadays, the websites are perfect for all the browsers (IE, Firefox and Chrome) and for all sizes of screens (Desktop, Tablets, Phablets, and Phones). All thanks to Bootstrap developers -Mark Otto and Jacob Thornton of Twitter, though it was later declared to be an open-source project.

2. Front End

❖ HTML (Hypertext Markup Language)

HTML stands for Hyper Text Markup Language, which is the most widely used language on Web to develop web pages. HTML was created by Berners-Lee in late 1991 but "HTML 2.0" was the first standard HTML specification which was published in 1995. HTML 4.01 was a major version of HTML and it was published in late 1999. Though HTML 4.01 version is widely used but currently we are having HTML-5 version which is an extension to HTML 4.01, and this version was published in 2012.

- Hypertext refers to the way in which Web pages (HTML documents) are linked together. Thus, the link available on a webpage is called Hypertext.
- As its name suggests, HTML is a Markup Language which means you use HTML to simply "mark-up" a text document with tags that tell a Web browser how to structure it to display.
- Originally, HTML was developed with the intent of defining the structure of documents like headings, paragraphs, lists, and so forth to facilitate the sharing of scientific information between researchers.

Now, HTML is being widely used to format web pages with the help of different tags available in HTML language.

❖ CSS (Cascading Style Sheet)

CSS is used to control the style of a web document in a simple and easy way.

CSS is the acronym for "Cascading Style Sheet". This tutorial covers both the versions CSS1, CSS2 and CSS3, and gives a complete understanding of CSS, starting from its basics to advanced concepts.

CSS handles the look and feel part of a web page. Using CSS, you can control the color of the text, the style of fonts, the spacing between paragraphs, how columns are sized and laid out, what background images or colors are used, layout designs, variations in display for different devices and screen sizes as well as a variety of other effects.

- CSS is easy to learn and understand but it provides powerful control over the presentation of an HTML document. Most commonly, CSS is combined with the markup languages HTML or XHTML.

Advantages of CSS

- CSS saves time – You can write CSS once and then reuse same sheet in multiple HTML pages. You can define a style for each HTML element and apply it to as many Web pages as you want.
- Pages load faster – If you are using CSS, you do not need to write HTML tag attributes every time. Just write one CSS rule of a tag and apply it to all the occurrences of that tag. So less code means faster download times.

- Easy maintenance – To make a global change, simply change the style, and all elements in all the web pages will be updated automatically.
- Superior styles to HTML – CSS has a much wider array of attributes than HTML, so you can give a far better look to your HTML page in comparison to HTML attributes.
- Multiple Device Compatibility – Style sheets allow content to be optimized for more than one type of device. By using the same HTML document, different versions of a website can be presented for handheld devices such as PDAs and cell phones or for printing.
- Global web standards – Now HTML attributes are being deprecated and it is being recommended to use CSS. So it's a good idea to start using CSS in all the HTML pages to make them compatible to future browsers.

❖ JavaScript

JavaScript is a dynamic computer programming language. It is lightweight and most commonly used as a part of web pages, whose implementations allow client-side script to interact with the user and make dynamic pages. It is an interpreted programming language with object-oriented capabilities.

JavaScript was first known as LiveScript, but Netscape changed its name to JavaScript, possibly because of the excitement being generated by Java. JavaScript made its first appearance in Netscape 2.0 in 1995 with the name LiveScript. The general-purpose core of the language has been embedded in Netscape, Internet Explorer, and other web browsers.

- JavaScript is a lightweight, interpreted programming language.
- Designed for creating network-centric applications.
- Complementary to and integrated with Java.
- Complementary to and integrated with HTML.

Open and cross-platform.

❖ jQuery

jQuery is a fast and concise JavaScript Library created by John Resig in 2006 with a nice motto: Write less, do more. jQuery simplifies HTML document traversing, event handling, animating, and Ajax interactions for rapid web development. jQuery is a JavaScript toolkit designed to simplify various tasks by writing less code. Here is the list of important core features supported by jQuery

- DOM manipulation – The jQuery made it easy to select DOM elements, negotiate them and modifying their content by using cross-browser open source selector engine called Sizzle.
- Event handling – The jQuery offers an elegant way to capture a wide variety of events, such as a user clicking on a link, without the need to clutter the HTML code itself with event handlers.
- AJAX Support – The jQuery helps you a lot to develop a responsive and feature rich site using AJAX technology.
- Animations – The jQuery comes with plenty of built-in animation effects which you can use in your websites.
- Lightweight – The jQuery is very lightweight library - about 19KB in size (Minified and gripped).
- Cross Browser Support – The jQuery has cross-browser support, and works well in IE 6.0+, FF 2.0+, Safari 3.0+, Chrome and Opera 9.0+

3. Back End

❖ ASP.NET 2010

ASP.NET is a framework for developing dynamic web applications. It supports languages like VB.Net, C#, Jscript.Net, etc. The programming logic and content can be developed separately in Microsoft Asp.Net. This course covers some important aspect of ASP.NET like reusable code, deploying the .net application on the server, testing web application, debugging and so on.

❖ MS SQL SERVER 2008

SQL Server is a relational database management system (RDBMS) developed by Microsoft. It is primarily designed and developed to compete with MySQL and Oracle database.

It supports both 32-bit and 64-bit environments. In this website it's used to store data in nvdb database.

Waterfall model

First introduced by Dr. Winston W. Royce in a paper published in 1970, the waterfall model is a software development process. The waterfall model emphasizes that a logical progression of steps be taken throughout the software development life cycle (SDLC), much like the cascading steps down an incremental waterfall. While the popularity of the waterfall model has waned over recent years in favor of more agile methodologies, the logical nature of the sequential process used in the waterfall method cannot be denied, and it remains a common design process in the industry.

The Six Stages of Falling Water

Actually, implementing a waterfall model within a new software project is a rather straightforward process, thanks in large part due to the step-by-step nature of the method itself.

- Requirements: During this initial phase, the potential requirements of the application are methodically analyses and written down in a specification document that serves as the basis for all future development. The result is typically a requirements document that defines what the application should do, but not how it should do it.
- Analysis: During this second stage, the system is analyses in order to properly generate the models and business logic that will be used in the application.
- Design: This stage largely covers technical design requirements, such as programming language, data layers, services, etc. A design specification will typically be created that outlines how exactly the business logic covered in analysis will be technically implemented.
- Coding: The actual source code is finally written in this fourth stage, implementing all models, business logic, and service integrations that were specified in the prior stages.
- Testing: During this stage, QA, beta testers, and all other testers systematically discover and report issues within the application that need to be resolved. It is not uncommon for this phase to cause a “necessary repeat” of the previous coding phase, in order for revealed bugs to be properly squashed.
- Maintenance: Finally, the application is ready for deployment to a live environment. The operations stage entails not just the deployment of the application, but also subsequent support and maintenance that may be required to keep it functional and up-to-date.

Data flow Diagram

Data flow diagram is graphical representation of flow of data in an information system. It is capable of depicting incoming data flow, outgoing data flow and stored data. The DFD does not mention anything about how data flows through the system.

There is a prominent difference between DFD and Flowchart. The flowchart depicts flow of control in program modules. DFDs depict flow of data in the system at various levels. DFD does not contain any control or branch elements.

1. Types of DFD

Data Flow Diagrams are either Logical or Physical.

- Logical DFD - This type of DFD concentrates on the system process, and flow of data in the system. For example in a Banking software system, how data is moved between different entities.
- Physical DFD - This type of DFD shows how the data flow is actually implemented in the system. It is more specific and close to the implementation.

2. DFD Components

DFD can represent Source, destination, storage and flow of data using the following set of components

- Entities - Entities are source and destination of information data. Entities are represented by a rectangle with their respective names.
- Process - Activities and action taken on the data are represented by Circle or Round-edged rectangles.
- Data Store - There are two variants of data storage - it can either be represented as a rectangle with absence of both smaller sides or as an open-sided rectangle with only one side missing.
- Data Flow - Movement of data is shown by pointed arrows. Data movement is shown from the base of arrow as its source towards head of the arrow as destination.

Context Level DFD For “NavsariExplorer”

1th Level DFD for Admin

1st Level DFD for User

2nd Level DFD for Admin Process 2.0

2nd Level DFD for User Process 5.0

ER Diagram

Why use ER Diagrams?

Here, are prime reasons for using the ER Diagram

- Helps you to define terms related to entity relationship r
- Provide a preview of how all your tables should connect, what fields are going to be on each table
- Helps to describe entities, attributes, relationships
- ER diagrams are translatable into relational tables which allows you to build databases quickly
- ER diagrams can be used by database designers as a blueprint for implementing data in specific software applications
- The database designer gains a better understanding of the information to be contained in the database with the help of ERP diagram
- ERD is allowed you to communicate with the logical structure of the database to users

Components of the ER Diagram

This model is based on three basic concepts:

- Entities
- Attributes
- Relationship

WHAT IS ENTITY?

A real-world thing either living or non-living that is easily recognizable and no recognizable. It is anything in the enterprise that is to be represented in our database. It may be a physical thing or simply a fact about the enterprise or an event that happens in the real world.

An entity can be place, person, object, event or a concept, which stores data in the database. The characteristics of entities are must have an attribute, and a unique key. Every entity is made up of some 'attributes' which represent that entity.

Examples of entities:

- Person: Employee, Student, Patient
- Place: Store, Building
- Object: Machine, product, and Car
- Event: Sale, Registration, Renewal
- Concept: Account, Course

Notation of an Entity

Relationship

Relationship is nothing but an association among two or more entities. E.g., Tom works in the Chemistry department.

Notation of Relationship

Entities take part in relationships. We can often identify relationships with verbs or verb phrases.

For example:

- You are attending this lecture
- I am giving the lecture
- A student attends a lecture
- A lecturer is giving a lecture.

Attributes

It is a single-valued property of either an entity-type or a relationship-type.

For example, a lecture might have attributes: time, date, duration, place, etc.

An attribute is represented by an Ellipse

Dandi International Beach, Gujarat

Dandi is a village in the Jalapore taluka, Navsari District, Gujarat, India. It is located on the coast of the Arabian Sea near the city of Navsari. It shot into worldwide prominence in 1930 when Mahatma Gandhi selected it to be the destination for the Salt March. He marched from Sabarmati (Ahmedabad) to Dandi with some of his followers to protest against the imposition of a tax on salt. Thousands of people participated, travelling on foot for 24 days from Ahmedabad to Dandi. The Government of India initiated plans to develop the Sabarmati-Dandi stretch as a tourist hub.
